

Rlte@Home: LTSS Shared Living

Rlte@Home: LTSS Shared Living is a Medicaid long-term services and supports (LTSS) service delivery option for people who want services in a home-like setting but cannot live alone because they need considerable help with the activities of daily living. Such activities include eating, dressing, toileting, homemaker services, meals, and transportation, among others.

Rlte@Home is a self-directed program in which the Medicaid LTSS beneficiary often has the opportunity to select their caregiver and manage most aspects of their care. For example, the beneficiary may choose a caregiver to live with them in their home or may choose to live in the caregiver's home. A community agency, working under contract with the State, helps a beneficiary find caregivers. Often, the caregiver is someone the person already knows, like a relative, friend or neighbor. Rlte@Home caregivers must be available 24 hours per day, seven days per week, and must be able to meet the beneficiary's services needs in a way that is agreeable to both.

How to receive services

To participate in the Rlte@Home program, a person's LTSS needs must be assessed and, if Medicaid eligible, a plan of care must be developed by the client and their caregiver with the assistance of the community agency.
