

Governor Gina M. Raimondo

COVID –19 Equity Council

Led by Executive Office of Health and Human Services
Secretary Womazetta Jones

September 2020 Progress Report

Working together for healthy and strong communities

The Equity Considerations Planning Team works across all state reopening workstreams and with the COVID-19 Equity Council. The COVID-19 Equity Council is an advisory council created to address the impacts of this virus in high density areas, poor neighborhoods and communities of color.

Structural, institutional and internalized inequities are at the core of the disproportionate impact COVID-19 is having in these cities, towns and neighborhoods.

It is our vision that we not only recover from the current pandemic, but work together to fight systemic racism and injustice.

History

The COVID-19 pandemic and the murder of George Floyd in 2020 highlighted the racial inequities that impact communities of color in Rhode Island.

The Equity Council meets weekly to review and discuss programs and initiatives created to respond to the crisis. To date, there have been presentations and discussions on housing, COVID-19 data, school reopening, employment programs and many others.

- April 2020 – Governor Raimondo created the Latino Advisory Group as a response to the high impact of COVID-19 on the Latino community.

April 24, 2020 – First Meeting

- May 2020 - The Governor expanded the focus, and membership creating the new COVID-19 Equity Council. The Equity Council is comprised of a diverse group of leaders from communities of color including elected officials, religious leaders, educators, and other community leaders. The Council's role is to advise the administration on COVID -19 response and recovery, share and disseminate information.

May 22, 2020 – First Equity Council Meeting

Action-Oriented Equity Council

The Equity Council consists of a diverse mix of community leaders of color and State staff committed to work that leads to meaningful action. This Rhode Island anchor word cloud represents the change society demands.
